

¡Atrapa la estrella!

by Brenda Ehrmantraut, translated by Ana Stevenson

“Not ball as usual in the park, but something special after dark.”

When a soldier has to go to the other side of the world for his work, he and his son play a game with the North Star.

¡Atrapa la estrella! is a timeless story that helps families feel connected, even when they are separated.

The English edition, Night Catch, has been a favorite since 2005!

About the Author

Brenda Ehrmantraut is an education leader who was inspired to create a story that would connect and comfort her brother's family during his deployment. She lives in the Northern Great Plains where wide-open spaces make it easy to spot the Big Dipper in the night sky.

About the Translator

Ana Stevenson has been a multilingual, multicultural translator for 25 years. Born in Santiago, Chile, she has traveled extensively and lived on four continents. She currently lives in Washington, DC, where she works in clinical social work with trauma survivors.

Beautiful artwork created by retired illustrator Vicki Wehrman.
